The Garden-City of Suresnes

At the beginning of the 20th century, a real policy of social housing was introduced in France, with the urban concept of «Garden-Cities» from England. In a context of housing crisis, a solution is sought to disrupt Paris and create a self-sufficient housing projects on the outskirts of the capital. Henri Sellier, President of the Low-priced Public Housing Office (OPDHBM) of the Seine Department, Minister of Public Health then Mayor of Suresnes, initiated a total of 15 Garden-Cities in the region (Ile-de-France). True utopias, these cities, often implanted in a very green framework, respond to the hygienist preoccupations of his contemporaries. The MUS team regularly organizes guided walking tours of the Garden-City of Suresnes and one of its heritage-apartment from the 1930s. The Garden-City of Suresnes is certified «Heritage of Regional Interest» since July, 2018. For more information, contact them.

The Suresnes Bridge

The bridge connects the Boulogne Forest (Paris) to the city of Suresnes (Hauts-de-Seine department). Historically, the only way to cross the Seine until 1837 was the ferry intended for the passage of pedestrians, horses, carts and carriages. Writings on this subject, dating from the 1590s, indicate its presence. The remaining testimony is the rue du Bac (Ferry Street), perpendicular to the Seine. In the middle of the 19th century, the industrial period saw the emergence of large factories along the Seine; the landscape drastically changed with the arrival of the railway and the development of the river with the construction of the dam-lock. Four others bridges will follow to connect the two banks.

The Suresnes Dam-Lock

Located along the Gallieni dock, it is made up of three locks and two dams. It measures 185 meters long, 18 meters wide and 5 meters deep. The lock has now 4 passes, each closed by 2 metal valves.

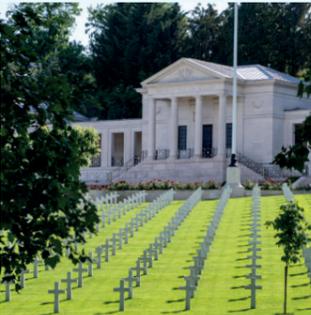

Facts and figures :

- 23 million tons of goods and 7 million passengers per year : traffic denser than the road one.
- 80 boats per day in both directions.

The Open Air School of Suresnes

The Open Air School was based on an idea to improve public health which was endorsed by the mayor at the time, Henri Sellier. The school offers an unusual architecture where the outdoors is always visible. Themes of childhood, medicine, architecture and the town are evoked. If you are inquisitive, the MUS organizes visits.
